寒冷的纳维亚半岛令女王克里斯蒂娜放弃王位，皈依天主教。她来到了气候温暖的罗马，倾心于一位主教。影片刻画了公众人物的私人生活，有唇枪舌剑，也有细致的心理透视。

Director Anthony Harvey Runtime: 103 min.

Starring Peter Finch and Liv Ullman

Cold Scandinavian obsession drives Queen Christina to relinquish her throne, convert to Catholicism and seek the warmer climate of Rome, where she pours out her heart to Cardinal Peter Finch ('It seems strange to call somebody father'). As an exploration of private spaces in the lives of public people (who, through circumstance or choice, are committed to celibacy), psychological insight is too often sacrificed for the sake of verbal swordplay. It ends up skirting perilously close to superior cliché ('Are we not the world's strangest couple?'). At least Garbo, playing the same role in Mamoulian's Queen Christina, conspired with her audience against the rest of the film. One wishes for something like that here: it all seems so remote.
